

THE ZEPHYR

March 2022/May 2022- Anno Societatis 56-57

Greetings from our Baron and Baroness

Greetings Ayreton!

We have continued to weather the storms, both those brought about by winter weather and the surge of Omicron. We hope that moving into spring will allow us to be together once again. We are looking forward to two Ayreton events that are in the works. Scribin' and Imbibin' at Stone Dog Inn will be taking place April 2, 2022 at St. Stephen Lutheran Church in Midlothian and Fall Coronation is scheduled for September 24, 2022 at Vasa Park in South Elgin. We are grateful to those Ayreton members who have taken on the event steward positions, as well as everyone helping to plan and make these events happen.

We are looking forward to attending upcoming events. We are hoping to attend the Midland's Village Green on March 5 in the Shire of Swordcliff and are excited to support the Ayreton archers at Better War through Archery in Constellation. Spring Crown and Coronation in May are also on our "to do" list, as well as various events in between.

With all events, meetings, and practices, please make decisions to attend or not, based on you and your families' individual needs. While we look forward to seeing all of you, we want to do so safely and with each person feeling comfortable with their decision.

We are in a unique position at this time to reinvent and re-discover activities in Ayreton. We would love, LOVE to hear opinions from all members, as well as friends of Ayreton as to what you would like to see happen in the barony. Please reach out and we can work to make your ideas come to life. What do you want to do? What activities would you like to participate in and in what way? Virtually, in person, a combination? Please email, call or PM. We very much want to listen. Here's to warmer weather bringing a new sense of energy and finding the joy in what we do. Thank you Ayreton for all you do!!

Greetings from the Seneschal

Greetings good cousins,

I write with hopeful news about our upcoming local event—"Scribin' & Imbibin' at the Stone Dog Inn", April 2, 2022. The event is jointly hosted by the Barony and the Canton of Grey Gargoyles. We will have the usual scribal and brewing/vinting classes and some of the usual Stone Dog shenanigans. We will be following the Midrealm's COVID Safe policies. If the pandemic continues on its current trajectory, we will gather then.

I hope you are all able to join us, but as usual under the circumstances everyone should follow whatever feels safe to them. No obligations to attend any events.

If, however you are feeling OK with it, and would like to help, please reach out! Lord Godfrey and I are the event stewards and would welcome help.

The Midrealm calendar is opening up as spring and summer approach, and Pennsic is currently being planned. Fingers crossed, we are approaching something like normal, whatever normal will look like going forward.

In the meantime, stay safe and well.

Evzenie
Seneschal, Ayreton

Greetings from the Chronicler

Greetings fair cousins of Ayreton,

Thank you to those who have submitted articles, scrolls, etc. I'd love a scribe to submit a scroll for the May 2022 issue, as well as a volunteer for the "Meet the Populace" section.

Remember, The Zephyr depends on your participation. If you have anything you would like to submit for publication or any ideas you'd like to see featured, please let me know at ayreton.chronicler@midrealm.org

A Medieval Miscellany

By Librarian Alexandria

St. Patrick: International Man of Mystery

To be honest, I was planning a different topic for this month's column, but I realized it would be coming out in March, and let's face it—March is all about St. Patrick. At least in the US, it's a time for the Wearin' of the Green, dyeing rivers green, painting faces green, and getting wasted on green beer and throwing up green. And wearing those stupid headbands with the shamrock antennae. No saint in the calendar has such a following except maybe St. Nicholas in his Santa Claus guise.

Everyone knows the myths: he drove the snakes out of Ireland, he invented the four-leafed clover (really, people?), he single-handedly converted the Irish to Christianity, and he was Irish, right?

Um, no.

First, the climate of Ireland is exactly the wrong kind for snakes. Snakes like the heat, particularly venomous snakes, which you'll usually find in either warm wet climates or warm dry climates. The operative word there is "warm." Ireland's temperature rarely gets much above 60 degrees Fahrenheit. It's wet and cold. (It's on the same latitude as Newfoundland.) Even copperheads and water moccasins (native to the New World, btw), which live in more temperate climates, hibernate during the winter, and come out in the heat of the summer. Reptiles are cold-blooded creatures, and cold only makes them sluggish.

There is no evidence that there ever were snakes in Ireland, at least not since people settled there.

One of the most well-known stories about Patrick is how he taught about the Trinity using a shamrock (three leaves, one for each of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit). He didn't use a four-leafed one. It's not even the same plant.

There were Christian communities in Ireland by the time Patrick returned; in fact, there were a number of Christian missionaries and bishops there from the mid fourth century on.

And he was definitely not Irish. He was born somewhere in Britain, sometime around 385. He never called himself "Patrick" – or even "Padraig," the Irish version of his name. He only referred to himself as "Patricius." A Roman name because he was the son of a Roman decurion and deacon. Historians aren't sure where exactly he was from, but he himself said he was from a prominent Romano-British family. There is no doubt he was educated. But at the age of 16, he was kidnapped by Irish raiders and sold into slavery.

According to his own Declarations, one of the two surviving manuscripts we're pretty sure he wrote, he wasn't even particularly religious as a kid. But he spent six years in Ireland as a shepherd; the isolation gave him the time to figure out what he thought and what he believed. He says he heard a voice telling him it was time to go home and that a ship was waiting for him, so he abandoned his flock (one hopes only metaphorically) and headed for the coast, where he talked his way aboard a ship bound for Britain.

Thereafter he suffered shipwreck with the rest of the crew, and had many adventures, which we can believe or not as we choose. There seems to be some doubt as to the authenticity of his tales; they may have originally been meant as parables. Finally, he was reunited with his family.

He only stayed a few years there, however; soon he traveled to Gaul and studied at a number of monasteries, finally returning to Ireland, where he went about his religious work.

It is believed that he died around 460 AD, in Ireland. The date of his death is observed as March 17th, although we have no way of knowing for sure.

Incidentally—he has never been canonized by the Catholic Church. In the early Middle Ages, canonization was handled at the diocesan level, not by the Pope. And when the duty devolved onto the Pope, many of the old saints got lost in the shuffle.

Chronicler's Note: My Dear Librarian Alexandria and others, historical accuracy aside, Pádraig is the Irish for Patrick and he is the Patron Saint of Ireland, much like Saint Jadwiga (Andrew) is the Patron Saint of Poland, Saint Nikolaos (Nicholas) is the Patron Saint of Greece, St. Dafydd – or Dewi Sant – is the Patron Saint of Wales. So even though St. Patrick's name was Patricius, when talking about the Irish holiday of St. Patrick's Day, NEVER refer to it as St. Patty's Day! It's St. Patrick or St. Paddy but not St. Patty. ---Signed, a fervent person of Irish descent

Name:

Mike Tyderek

How long have you been in the SCA?

First attendance was going to Jubilee Country Faire, in 2001. It was a Demo kind of camping event that hasn't existed in many years. Then I was on and off again for a few years due to relationship changes. Came back strong in 2006. Odd bit of SCA-timeline trivia: Sir Sabah and I had the same "First fighter practice."

What drew you to the SCA?

I had been playing in a fantasy LARP for a few years and met up with some SCAdians. They turned me onto the Society with its merit-based recognition, it was quite different "Hey, you're super cool at X, because you actually have skill in X, not because it says so on your character sheet." You are your character sheet.

What activities do you participate in?

They are pretty focused as I tend to go all in with buying/obtaining/making the tools and gear that I need to participate in a "thing" My wife, Baroness Jane, are a total team. We've been homebrewing since 2007 and have been archers since before that. They were activities that we could do together. We also are not strangers to the Royal Presence. How better to help those that have to travel every weekend to some place far from home, maybe They have brought Their staff with them, maybe the Staff couldn't make it, maybe They are flying solo / low key. It's always nice to have a pair of friendly faces that know the lay of the land and can get things done.

A bit about your life outside of the SCA? Job? Hobbies?

We've 2 cats, Rufus and Boris, you may have seen Rufus on various brew day photos. And Boris is my A&S cat, he like to help me fletch and do research. I've been around projectiles in one shape or another as my father was a competitive pistol shooter, I've been shooting since I was 7. Heh, you'd think I'd be better at it. I've a thing, it's not rare, but also not common. I've cross eye dominance. Which means I don't know how to aim. I'm constantly re-doing the "Ballistic Maths" on every arrow - I have zero consistency. I've been in IT for around 25 years, 20 years here at The Firm. I work with a variety of technologies; my current tasks are with conference room construction and usage. It's more Budgets & Blueprints than Break-fix. I didn't start in IT, I've a B.S. in Criminal Justice from ISU, graduate studies in Applied Computer Science - left that MS program for a job. Stay in School kids - finish that degree. And then there was that time I was in the Walt Disney World College

The Hollowed Ship

(Part 2)

By Rædesmann Andreas Blacwode (he/him/his)

"No march to Troy without me can your Myrmidons advance,
"Just drive the Trojan fire from hollow ships before your lance,
"For when Apollo's sun upon the ruin'd Troy has shone,
"T'will be the day we brought her down, you and I alone!"

"My rage at Agammemnon, he who took my rightful prize,
"I won her with my mighty spear, but Agammemnon's lies
"took her away, my Brisies sweet, as if I were a child
"He kept her for his own and now my prize has been defiled."

"But even though I'll let it go, forgive the trickster king
"I swore to gods I would not fight, no war cry would I sing
"Till flames of Trojan warriors approached my hollow ships
"So wear my armor bright and loose my war song from your lips!"

"They'll see my helmet's beetled brow before them on the field
"And thus will Trojan soldiers flee the battle, or they'll yield!
"If only Atreus' Kingly son had given me such trust
"As Patroklos before me, eager now for battle's dust."

"I hear the men of Troy outside, they're stooping on our camp
"And even Diomedes cannot rise, with wrappings damp
"Nor Agammemnon challenging the Trojans at the wall
"The only thing that I can hear is princeling Hektor's call!"

"So go, my friend Patroklos, wear my armor, be my shade,
"And stride into the battlefield with wordfame that I made
"Drive the Trojans back into the night, that we may live
"And make my glory greater, so the Argive King will give

"My Brisies back to me, along with gold and silver more
"You do this in my armor, save our ships along the shore,
"But then return, Patroklos, for your battle-lust burns bright
"only when you have me there to bring it all to light."

"I warn you, do not drive to Troy, to bring an end to war
"Do not tempt the ire of Gods on Mount Olympus far
"For if Apollo'd loose his bow, the Trojans he'll defend
"Without me there to take the lead, he'll bring you to your end."

From where they sat, Patroklos and Achillies saw the fire of tall Achean war ships, burning like a funeral pyre
"To arms, Patroklos, arm yourself," stern Prince Achillies cried
"Before your ships are cinders, and dead on Trojan soil we lie!"

"Here, take my greaves and breastplate, blazoned stars upon the chest
"My shield and my helmet with its two dark horsehair crests
"My sword with silvered hilt, and my two battle spears you'll take
"And with the blood of Trojan men my blades' thirst you will slake."

And then the war-team, horses fine, yoked together as a team
All in bronze as well were they, all polished to a sheen
Achillies rallied Myrmidons, wolves, hungry for the fight
They swarmed around Patroklos, ready to bring down their might.

The men of fifty ships all stood, five Captains in command
Menesthus, and Phoenix, Pisander of Maemalus' land.
Alcimedon and Eudorus also held Achillies' trust
And like a mighty spear, there into battle, they he thrust

"My comrades, brothers Myrmidon, you've waited through days long
"To make true spoken threats giv'n past, to right Prince Paris' wrong
"And as we've waited, battle nigh, our anger has but grown
"So now's the chance to change the tide and strike the Trojans down!"

A singing cry burst forth from every Myrmidon's full lips
No more would Trojan warriors be free to fire our ships!
The ranks pulled closer, closer still, tight as a good stone wall
Advancing on the battle front between Greek ships so tall.

And as Patroklos rode before them, vanguard, far in front
Achillies went back to his tent, where he did voice his want
"Oh, Zeus, I hold my well wrought cup with wine to please you, King
"Oh as I sacrifice to you, this prayer to you I sing!"

"Pelagian, Dodona's lord, of whom the Selli speak
"I beg you now, bring to me conclusion that I seek
"I send the Myrmidons to fight proud Troy along the shore
"Please give Patroklos victory to drive them off, no more"

"Just that, King Zeus, to save our ships, and bring him safe to me
"As I stay here among the ships here beached next to the sea
"He must return, with armor mine, from driving Trojans off
"I'll sacrifice five bulls and give you sheep with wool so soft!"

And then Achillies poured the wine to fall on Trojan sand
And Zeus did hear and vow to give Patroklos victory grand
But safe return was not ordained, for friend or armor bright
Of this Achillies did not know, he simply watched the fight.

Now on did proud Patroklos lead, with men arrayed behind
The fire of burning hollow ships on helms and spears points shined
For Zeus, the King of Gods had made half truth of Achillies' prayer
Patroklos would have victory, but too would he die there.

New Groups Forming

Announcing some new groups forming in the Barony:

Dramatis Personae

If there isn't already enough drama in your life, come join us and make some -- in a good way! We are looking for experienced theatrical types of all varieties -- actors, directors, writers, and crew -- as well as those who are interested in learning, regardless of formal training or background, or lack thereof. We envision a flexible ensemble that will adapt to a variety of event venues and performance niches, from dramatic monologues at Feast to 'flash mob' scenes in the Populace Room to fully staged plays. For more information, contact Caitlin Maxuell de Calderwood at michaellemcclowry@gmail.com.

Unofficial Ayreton Leatherworks Guild

Since we do not have a group for it yet, RJ Jermanowicz has created the "Unofficial Ayreton Leatherworks Guild" group on Facebook. If there is interest, he would be like to make it an official Guild of the Barony eventually . Ideally, this Facebook group will be a place to build a community within our community and offer a place to teach, chat, and show off the fun things we make.

However, for now, here is the link, feel free to join and share some of the leatherwork you do and tell us a little about yourself when you join the group.
